

HISTORIC ANCESTORS

With this issue [Fall 2000], we start an occasional series entitled "Historic Ancestors." In it, single lines of descent of subscribers will be published, starting from an ancestor of some historical importance and continuing down to the contributor. An entry for this ancestor in a national or regional biographical dictionary, where inclusion is based on an individual's significance or accomplishments, should be cited in the first footnote. An exception to this requirement would be for a lineage that in and of itself possesses interesting or unusual characteristics. It is hoped that the series will give an added impetus to genealogical research and be of both historical and sociological interest. The initial ancestor must have lived in the sixteenth century or later. As a goal, we hope to have lineages fit into two pages, but recognize that in some cases, to include the necessary full documentation, they will require about 2½ pages as the Anne (Marbury) Hutchinson lineage in the present issue shows. We begin the series with two lines which provide an example of the format. Subscribers are encouraged to review their ancestral records and to select and submit a line of descent from an ancestor they consider to be of historical significance or interest.

<sup>51</sup> His biographical entry is at Dansk biografisk leksikon, 3rd ed., 16 vols. (København, 1979-84), 6:292-93. The lineage presented here is based primarily on Anders Schmidt, Johanne Margrethe Kaysen og hendes slægt, 7 parts, typescript (Aabenraa, Denmark, 1986). The late Dr. Schmidt spent many years researching his ancestry in the church and court records of Slesvig, and this carefully documented work includes extensive extracts of original sources. He generously provided me with a copy of the seven parts (almost 1000 pages) on the ancestry of his great-grandmother, a sister of Adelheit Kaysen (no. 10). With his permission, a copy was donated to the Family History Library, Salt Lake City, and is available there and on FHL INTL microfilm 1440294, items 10-16.

<sup>52</sup> Unless otherwise noted, all locations were in Slesvig (Sønderjylland), a duchy in southern Jutland under the Danish king.

<sup>53</sup> His cloak, pierced by arrows, was hung in Bylderup church until it disintegrated in the eighteenth century. In 1605 in a petition to the duke of Slesvig concerning his land in Lydersholm, Nis Hansen wrote that his grandfather had been gravely wounded in the affray (Schmidt [supra note 1], 96-97).

<sup>57</sup> Two wall epitaphs (1618 and 1619) in Bylderup church include their portraits, coats of arms, and an account of both their ancestries. A study of the Hajstrupgård family coat of arms is at Charles M. Hansen, "Hjort og slange i vaabenet," Heraldisk Tidsskrift 37 (1978): 305-11.

<sup>58</sup> Schmidt [supra note 1], 104-5a, 142-43, 160a-60b, 160e-60f, 172-73, 175. The funeral sermon on Nis Hansen, 1616 (at Friis [supra note 4], 234-35), has much information on him and his ancestors.

<sup>59</sup> Schmidt [supra note 1], 127-29, 160c-60d 196-97, 199. Hans Nissen was granted by the duke of Slesvig the right to hunt hares and foxes with tracking hounds (Friis [supra note 4], 241). For Nis Asmussen's family, see Gunnar Brun Nissen and Harald Nissen, Slekten Nissen fra Bov Sogn i Sønderjylland (Trondheim, 1978). Nis Asmussen's mother's father's father, Jes Thomsen, was ennobled by King Hans of Denmark in 1488 (Schmidt [supra note 1], 195-96, 216-17; Danmarks Adels Aarvog 25 [1908]: xi-xiii, 78-79).
